vassed during the recess.

The protection of the Committee, according to Senator Lexow's statement, was absolutely guaranteed to the witness if he would tell the truth. This seemed to settle the question in the minds of most people.

May Dismise His Indictment.

During recess Col. Fellows and Mr. Goff consulted with Chairman Lexow and other members of the Committee, and it was understood that the arrangement concluded was that if Capt. Schmittberger testified unreceivedly as to the system of police corruption, and made a full confession of the tacts upon which he has been indicted, the indictment would be dismissed and he would be a free man. None of the persons in conference, however, would make any statement out of court.

Everybody around the neighborhood of the City Hall was eagerly discussing the latest sensa lional phase of the police investigation.

of the City Hall was eagerly discussing the latest sensational phisms of the police investigation.

A big crowd surrounded the bar of a Centre etreet saloon about the time the Committee adjourned, when a burly, red-faced man came running in boiling with excitement.

"Who's on the stand now, Tim?" queried two or three voices from the crowd as he plunged in.

"Schmittberger, and he's givin' the whole snap dead away," blurted out the newcomer as soon as he could find his breath.

"Hully Gee!" "Squealin', is he?" "You don't mean it, Schmittberger?" "Well, I have my opinion of a squealer?" were some of the ejaculations heard in the chorus of surprise that went up at this startling announcement, and there was a hubbub which lasted the rest of the noon hour.

The Captain Looked Unhappy.

Capt. Schmittberger returned to the Committee-room at 2 o'clock with Sergt.-at-Arms Schram. He appeared to be most unhappy and all broken up, and was the picture of misery as he sat alone at the table waiting for the ordeal to begin sgain. Father Ducey, who knows him very well, went over and sat down beside him. As the clergyman talked to him the Captain seemed to brighten up a bit, but not for long. His lawyers, William F. Howe and Joe Moss, joined him. It was said to be their advice that he confess.

SCHMITTBERGER ON THE STAND. Although Mr. Goff toid Chairman Lexow he would be ready to go on at 2.15 P. M., he did not come in till half an hour later. The Committee-room was packed at that hour, and such a struggling, jostling, pushing crowd as filled the upper corridors of the Court-House had never before been seen there. Several attaches of the District-Attorney's office were present, including George Gordon Battle and John D. Lindeay, and Charles Stewart Smith and ex-Collector Tom Murphy were among the spectators.

Once More on the Rack. It was 2.50 when Capt. Schmittberger ztepped up briskly and resumed the witness chair. He seemed anxious to have it over with.

"While you have been Captain are there patroimen who have violated the rules and defled your authority?"

"No. sir; not openly. I have heard, though, that they said to others that they did not care for me."

Asked to Join the Pequod.

The witness said that when he was first appointed to the force Capt. McCullagh was in charge of the Tender-loin precinct. Then came Steers, Williams, Berghold and Relly.

He was first detailed to duty as ward man by Capt. Steers, who gave him no instructions, except to attend to special fin. cases, larceny and robbery. He had nothing to do at that time with disorderly houses.

"A detective named Dunlap attended to all that business. I had never paid any attention to it," said the Captain.

Q. Dunlap got into trouble, didar; he? A Yes, he was reduced to the raphs for allowing some to run in the precinct. Afterwards he may to run in the precinct. Action of the steamboat men.

Detective Vail told me it was the custom, and that the Captain usually got one-half of what was collected. Vail said he was first appointing to do any attention to it," said the Captain.

Mr. Goff said it was in this latter place he was first prayed for in public. He had to foreclose a mortgage on it for a client of his.

client of his.

These places, the witness said, were the resort of the lowest of the low. Criminals of all classes and prostitute frequented them.

Q. Was it understood that all these places were under police protection? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And to whom was the protection money paid?

A. To Capt. Williams.

A murmur went around the court-room at this statement of the witness.

Q. Would 'the possible that these places could.

were immediately transferred to some other post.

"The men who were detailed to these posts," said the witness, "were always selected for that particular purpose. They knew that they were not to interfere and they never did."

In some instances they did, however, and were always punished for it.

Q. Are officers ever instructed to co-operate with the keepers of these disorderly houses in cases of assaults or robberies committed in them? A in such cases the officers would know what to do.

Mr. Goff said it was a fact that Cole-man was killed in the house and that no inquest or investigation had ever been made.

Q. While you were special officer did you exact any money from keepers of disorderly houses? A. No. sir: that was not among my duties. The witness said he was promoted to be roundsman April 2, 1880, by Commis-sioner Wheeler.

Q. What did you have to pay? A. Nothing The way I came to be promoted was that found Commissioner Wheeler's dog, which was lost.

Five Complaints Against Him.

Mr. Goff said he found that there were five complaints against the witness while he was patrolman. The first was for absence from post; the second for failing to find an open window; the third for neglectling to go directly to the station with a prisoner, and the fourth and fifth conduct unbecoming an officer. The latter two were dismissed.

Capt. Schmittberger said he could explain all these complaints. The first was made because on a very hot day he went into a grocery store to get a cabbage leaf to put in his helmet.

mails because on a very hot day he went into a grocery store to get a cabbage leaf to put in his helmet.

The second was because he neglected to report a broken pane of glass in the house of a son of ex-Mayor Haveneyer. Six officers were fined five days each on this charge.

He was fined ten days' pay for falling to get to the United States Court with a prisoner in time to arraign him before the Judge.

Schmittherger said that roundsmen had favorites, but did not know that they ever exacted money for protection for privileges they granted.

During the three years he was roundsman the same system prevailed in the precinct under Williams, Berghold and then Williams again. Frequent complaints were made against disorderly houses by citizens, particularly against the so-called "French houses."

Complainant Ordered Out. "One man named O'Mally was very active in waging war against these places. One night he came to the station and had a row with Capt. Williams about it, and the Captain finally told him to get out. They had a pretty lively row of it at the time." Q. He got no mtisfaction? A. No.

Q. Did you ever hear Capt. Williams threaten a club the officers of the Society for the Prevention of Crime out of the precinct? A. No, sir, sut saw it in the papers. I was sent down by apt. Williams several times to try and drive the somen of the street, but not out of the precinct, never had orders to raid those people. ONG SHOTS AT NEWORLEANS

Q. It was protected, though? A. Oh, yes. Promoted on His Record. The witness said he was appointed a sergeant on March 6, 1885, by Commissioners French and Matthews. He did not pay a cent, but was promoted solely on his record as an officer. He had made an arrest of a noted burglar named Michael Dardelle, which had brought him prominently before the Board, and both the Commissioners named took a hand in promoting him.

He remained in the precinct as sergeant until Dec. 6, 1890, when he was appointed Captain.

Not Asked About the $500. While asking Schmittberger about his collections in the Steamboat Squad, it was noticed that Mr. Goff did not ask about his collection of $500 from the French line.

It was understood that this point was left open so Capt. Schmittberger could not claim immunity on it in case he was not perfectly candid during the remainder of his examination.

This, Mr. Goff said, was a forgery, and he said he would give money to ascertain who had made out the subpoens and who served it.

Mr. Goff added that he had received numerous letters asking him to call this or that person and ask certain questions, and that he had been abused for failing to do so.

He was excused temporarily and told to bring his deeds and bank books after recess.

Then Mr. and Mrs. Holland.

Mrs Julia Holland was the next witness. In reply to Mr. Goff's question, she said she had no interest in any real property and never had. She didn't remember whether she had signed any deeds or mortgages for her husband or not. He had a half interest in property at One Hundred and Fifty-third street and Amsterdam avenue.

Charles H. Holland, a tailor, of 1931 Amsterdam avenue, and husband of the preceding witness, was then called. He admitted that his interest in the property mentioned by his wife was worth fi.000. He had dealt frequently in real estate, and mentioned several pictures.

As Mr. Holland went out Mr. Goff followed him, and at the same time Capt. Schmittherger came in, accompanied by Lawyer Joe Moss, his counsel. The Captair took a seat beside Justice Voorhis, and they exchanged a few words. A report went around that Schmittherger was going to make a confession. While waiting for developments Mr. Moss, the Committee's counsel, called Howard McDonald, who said he knew aomething about Polleeman Gill, who arrested Hannah Rosenthal.

The witness was also a friend of Miss Rosenthal. He said that Gill came up to Harlem to see him after he (Gill) got into trouble through his arrest of Miss Rosenthal.

Judge Martine to-day excused the Grand Jury until Dec. 26. He said that he was sorry he could not excuse them until after the holidays, but that the condition of public affairs in this county would not permit of his so doing.

The trials of Richard A. Canfeld.
Evelyn Bell and Georgiana Hastings, for refusing to obey Lexow subposens were set down for this morning in the Court of Oyer and Terminer. The cases weet over to no definite time.

As soon as these cases had been disposed of Evelyn Bell was at once served with a subpoena for the Senate Investigating Committee, and, together with her lawyer, was taken over to the committee by Lemmon, the agent of the Society for the Prevention of Crime.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—The latest advices from Minister Terrell at Constantinople to the State Department indicates that the Porte is still firm in its opposition to the proposed inquiry to be made into the Armenian cutrages by him, under the conditions prescribed by the President. In undertaking the inquiry in spite of the refusal of the Porte to appetion big mission he will be appeted. Inquiry in spite of the refusal of the Porte to sanction his mission, he will be at great personal risk. It would be extremely unaafe for him to venture into the disturbed country without at armed escort, and the Porte seems definitely and the porte seems are inclined to furnish such an escort.

It is probable that the United standard will persist in his efforts induce the Porte to accode to the quest, and, if it about he furnish that the furnish which he is seemed as it is a furnished to the property of the property of
